An EICR (Electrical Installation Condition Report) is, as the name implies, a report into the condition of the electrical installation and to highlight any safety shortcomings, defects or deviations from the current revision of the electrical regulations BS7671. It's also called the 'Landlord Safety Test' or the 'Home Buyer's Test,' and it's always done by a licenced electrician. We recommend that you undergo an EICR every ten years to ensure that your house is secure.
